England: the experience of black and minority ethnic students and staff

Workshop

Dr. Maki Kimura (University College London, UK)

I have been involved in several projects on equality and diversity in higher education in the UK (mainly England). Through these projects, I have explored the experience of minority ethnic students in higher education such as their expectation, attainment and educational outcomes, as well as the experience of minority ethnic staff in working in higher education. While these projects specifically looked at the issue of race and ethnicity, they also highlighted how gender and socio-economic background also intersect to create particular experience of higher education.
